Chinook Advance

Dear Madam:

We regret that there has been some misunderstanding. Our Open Letter of 18th May was addressed to the Mayor and Councillors of Chinook. We had regarded this as a purely Municipal matter and did not contemplate that any private resident would mistake herself for the Mayor and Councillors.

May we be permitted to ough the medium of your paper to repeat the simple question addressed to the Mayor and Councillors of Chinook: What has happened to our Village common? Bewildered Parent

The greatest living Allied air ace is "Billy" Bishop, a Canadian pilot who, in World War I, brought down 72 German aircraft. In this war, Billy Bishop acted as an Air Marshal in the RCAF until his recent resignation to take up other duties.

Canadian farmers in 1945 will seed about 870,000 fewer acres to wheat than they did in 1944, owing to the wheat surplus now jamming prairie elevators. This acreage will instead be given over to oats, barley and flax.

In five and a half years of war, approximately 15,600 aircraft have been produced in Canada.

FULL EMPLOYMENT AT FAIR WAGES

the Foundation of all True Progress

"The people of this nation are tired of the delay in correcting the weaknesses that have developed in our system. . . We must correct these obvious weaknesses in the economy we have, by rationalizing it — not by wrecking it. We must maintain the system which gives full play to individual initiative, and a fair return to all legitimate enterprise which provides employment; and the State, by just laws relating to workers, must see to it that at no time shall there fail to be provided the opportunity for a fair day's pay for a fair day's work for every one of our fellow-citizens in this Dominion who is able and willing to work."

John Bracken

We mean to see that every Canadian citizen able to work has the opportunity to work at fair pay.

- RATIONAL REFORM
- MAXIMUM PRODUCTION THROUGH THE FULL DEVELOPMENT OF OUR NATURAL RESOURCES
- FULL EMPLOYMENT AT FAIR WAGES

These are the pledges of the Progressive Conservative Party.

For full employment embracing all Canadians of every Province,

WE WILL:

- Help individual and co-operative enterprise to increase employment by revising crippling tax systems, by removing controls and regulations which slow down the expansion of legitimate enterprise, and by improving relationships between the Government, Labour and Management;
- Establish a National Development Board responsible for plans for full production and employment, as well as the preservation of our natural resources;

- Increase our trade by establishing an Export Board, by aggressive salesmanship abroad, by continuation of mutual aid until no longer necessary and by provision of trade credits to economically backward countries;
- See that the powers of the Bank of Canada are used to supply ample credit for an expanding economy;
- Undertake a carefully planned programme of socially desirable projects, such as low-cost rural and urban housing, rural electrification, conservation and reforestation, the development of natural resources — all on a national basis.

These Progressive Conservative policies are carefully and confidently pointed at a practical national objective — the realization in our time of an age of plenty.

Only the Progressive Conservative Party, with its far-sighted policies for the co-operative development of every part of Canada to new heights of prosperity — a prosperity in which ALL Canadians shall share fairly and honorably — only this Party face the challenge of the future with abiding confidence in the ultimate realization of the practical objectives embodied in its practical policies for employment at fair wages.

JOBS ASSURED BEFORE DEMOBILIZATION

A Square Deal for Veterans Assured by Progressive Conservatives

The very first clause of the Progressive Conservative plans for the re-establishment of Veterans, adopted at the National Convention of December, 1942, is as follows:—

DEMOBILIZATION

In carrying out the demobilization of Canada's Armed Forces the primary consideration should be the interest of those who have served. Demobilization should be based on the principle that members of the Armed Forces should not be discharged until their economic security is assured by placement in gainful employment or by assisted training and education to that end.

Here, in this simple statement of progressive, realistic policy is the only true solution of the fundamental problem by which every ex-service man and woman is faced. It is the only assurance of a square deal for all veterans. It is the very basis of the Rehabilitation Policies of the Progressive Conservative Party. No veteran will be discharged against his will until he is assured of a decent livelihood.

"Platitudes will not fill empty stomachs," declares John Bracken, "nor generalities provide jobs for those who have fought, nor wordy declamations about sacrifice ease the load of the widows and children whose husbands and fathers gave life itself that we might live in peace and security."

Throughout the war, Canadian service men and women have had their fill of platitudes and generalities.

Let our veterans now ask themselves this question. Does the spirit of political partisanship which the King Government has consistently manifested in time of war, offer any assurance of a square deal for veterans in time of peace? Does the iniquitous manpower policy which split Canada apart reflect the right spirit? Remember in war, as in peace, political policies infallibly dictate party principles.

It is significant that more than half of the Progressive Conservative candidates are service and ex-service men. No other party can even approach this record. These men know that no other party has such realistic and comprehensive plans for rehabilitation. They know that the Progressive Conservative Party is the service men's party.

They know that John Bracken, father of three sons on active service, understands the problems, the hopes and the fears of veterans.

They say, with John Bracken

"The cost of winning the war and the cost of re-establishing those who fought in it, is one and indivisible. In the plainest words at my command, I say to you that nothing short of full-time gainful employment for every man and woman who has worn the Canadian uniform will be acceptable. Every man and woman must be given an opportunity to earn a good living. If existing enterprise cannot do this, the State must, and will."

These service and ex-service candidates, with John Bracken, pledge themselves that, under no circumstances, will existing benefits to veterans be lessened. On the contrary, they will be increased and extended.

They, with John Bracken, pledge themselves to revise an out-moded pensions act, to humanize its administration, to eliminate red tape and inexcusable delays. Pension rates will be reviewed at once and increased to bring them in line with higher living costs.

Under a Progressive Conservative government, recorded condition of personnel on enlistment will be accepted as sufficient proof in determining disability pension. The veteran will be entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

The "first in, first out" principle will be followed on demobilization — with a job at decent pay assured to the veteran when he returns to "civvy" street.

In the words of our leader, we of the Progressive Conservative Party, "accept the challenge to demonstrate to you who fought that you shall not be handicapped in days of peace because you responded to the nation's call in days of war."

Danger Of Inflation

THROUGHOUT THE EUROPEAN WAR, the people of Canada were constantly warned of the danger of inflation. With the co-operation of the public, however, price controls, wage ceilings and other anti-inflation measures have been carried out, with the result that the cost of living here has risen very little in comparison with that of many other countries. Had living costs gone up to the extent often experienced in time of war, the people at home would have had a much more difficult time, and the war effort as a whole would no doubt have suffered. The inconvenience of attempting to keep wages and prices stabilized have been many, but the people have appeared to realize that these inconveniences are small, compared to the economic chaos which accompanies inflation.

Pacific War May Be Long

Since the Canadian Army and a large part of the Navy and Air Force have for over five years been in service in Europe, the end of hostilities there has meant that, for a time at least, the strain and anxiety of war has been eased for many people here. The gradual conversion of some war industries to the production of civilian goods has added to the feeling that we are entering upon a much less critical phase of hostilities. There is danger, however, in failing to realize that our forces will soon be involved in the war in the Pacific and that there is no indication now that the struggle there may not go on for some time. It must also be realized, that as long as we are at war, there is danger of the evils which accompany it, and that one of these evils is inflation. Lack of vigilance now would undo all that has been accomplished since 1939, and would in addition, destroy our opportunities for stability in the reconstruction period.

Public Support Must Continue

Vigilance will also be necessary during the time that the armed forces are being demobilized and war industries converted to peacetime production. The first year and a half following World War I saw a rapid rise of prices and it is believed that there is danger of the same thing happening when this war ends if the people fail to support price controls and other precautions against inflation. Finance Minister Isley, in a statement on this subject said, "Sharply rising prices in the demobilization and reconversion period would undoubtedly be followed by inflation and serious unemployment afterwards." Canada experienced a long period of unemployment and depression shortly before the war, and there is no one who would wish to see these conditions return. Public restraint in spending, and co-operation in maintaining stability of wages and prices even after the war is ended, will be one important factor making for security in the future.

Well Fed

Canada Has Least Reason To Complain About Food Shortage. What we ought all to remember is that, except for butter and sugar, Canada is now better fed than ever before. Our production of food has increased enormously during the war, in spite of labor and other shortages, and although much of our output is exported, quite enough food is left here to meet all reasonable requirements. Of all the world's countries, Canada has at this moment, probably the least reason to complain about its food position.—Brookville Recorder and Times.

Just Another Citizen

Princess Juliana Was Thoroughly Democratic Visitor In Canada

Princess Juliana, the heir apparent to the throne of the House of Orange who has now returned to her people freed at last from the Nazi yoke, was a most kindly, friendly and thoroughly democratic visitor in Canada. She lived quietly and simply at her home in Rockcliffe, a residential suburb of the capital. At any time she might be seen walking bareheaded along its winding streets with friends, usually her neighbors, or with her children. She put her foot down on the idea of sending her two daughters to a private school. When she took them to the public school she told the headmistress not to "tell stories about fairy princesses or any stuff like that." Her children were to be treated exactly the same as anybody else. They were to mix with all the other children and become their friends. And so they have. Princess Juliana seemed to like the informality of her life here. In her own home when servants were hard to get she helped to do the housework and frequently did the cooking for the family, according to a recent story written by Morris McDougall. She was an active voluntary worker at the Superfund Shop, which is run by ladies of Ottawa for the benefit of the Red Cross. She has been just "Juliana" at her own insistence, to her friends of the shop whom she has helped eagerly, unostentatiously, and energetically. With her heart full of the needs of her country she always had her eyes open for anything sold in the shop that might be of value to her people. "I want to buy that overcoat," she would say. "It is a long one and the men in my country are tall, you know," and the coat would be added to the large collection of goods that she prepared for the day when they could be delivered.

Olympic Runner From Canada Finds Photo Of Himself In Germany

Dr. Joe Goebels has admittedly produced a few surprises in his time but for "Mush" Limon, 30, of Vancouver, a shell-shattered house near the deflated doctor's Gladbach (Germany) estate takes the spotlight.

Casualty prompted the former city sprinter and Olympic runner to wander into the ruins.

Of the once expensive furnishings only a small table remained intact.

And on that table the amazed airman noticed a framed picture.

Goggle-eyed, he took another look.

It was a picture of himself, accepting the baton from Phil Edwards in the Olympic relay. The photo was taken in Berlin in 1936.

Limon has it now—his most cherished souvenir of the war.

Now the man who was in Germany with the City of Ottawa squadron, was based at Nindhoven when he wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Limon, West Vancouver.

SMILE AWHILE

Phyl: "What did your husband think about that expensive new hat you bought last week?"

Fl: "He just raved about it!"

"What was it you wanted to tell me?" asked the boy on furlough.

"Oh," said the girl, "it was just that mother last night asked me to ask you if you wanted to ask my father anything; he's going out of town tomorrow."

Wife: "How can we estimate our cost of living?"

Husband: "That's simple; take our income and add 30 per cent."

After giving the private a dressing down for being so late in returning with the supplies, the sergeant demanded, "Okay, let's hear how it happened, Miller."

"Well, I picked up a chaplain along the road," explained the woe-begone rookie, "and from then on the mules couldn't understand a word I said."

First Shopper—"Why are you racing around on a hot day like this?"

Second Shopper—"I'm trying to get something for my husband."

First Shopper—"Have you had any others?"

"All men who are fond of music, two paces forward!" bawled the top sergeant.

A man running after a tramcar, panted to the conductor: "How much to the station from here?"

"Twopence," replied the conductor.

The man continued to run, and having covered another stretch, inquired breathlessly of the conductor: "How much now?"

"Threepence," retorted the conductor, "You're running the wrong way."

"Do you think our new neighbors are desirable people?" asked the man of the house.

"Oh, yes," replied the wife. "I watched them unload their belongings. They have a lawn mower and their own garden tools."

"No, sir," replied Sandy. "We've just to die a natural death."

Merchandise Junked Before War Selling Well In Paris Shops

The big department stores of Paris, which were showing deficits year after year before the war, have experienced a sudden prosperity. The Bon Marche, for instance, showed a loss of 21,000,000 francs in 1938 but had a profit of 23,000,000 in 1944.

The stores are now selling out at a good profit all the broken, outmoded, and rejected merchandise which they junked in the warehouse before the war.

Two American soldiers who had just arrived in Britain found the telephone boxes somewhat confusing. One of them was trying to make a call.

OUR COMPLETE
SHORT STORY—

Three's A Crowd

—By—
HENRY W. ATWERTON

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Walter Williams, old man Blain's secretary, wasn't exactly happy. The glare of the sun on the water hurt his eyes. He took off his glasses and squinted at the three people in the stern of the cabin cruiser.

Ellen Blain, her father and Dean seemed unaware of him as the craft glided smoothly along. Walter had to admit the young boat salesman was handsome. The deeply tanned face showed up well above the white pullover sweater. The powerful jaw and snapping black eyes gave him away, though.

When they had anchored off Deer Island Mr. Blain selected the strongest rod and reel. "I won't need any help, Dean," he said, giving the rod a powerful swing toward the reef. "I was fishing before you learned to talk."

"Fine. You'll have plenty of action in a few minutes," promised Dean. "I'd keep the line a little tighter, though. They hit plenty hard, and you don't want to lose the first one."

"I thought you said there were lots of fish here," Blain grumbled, and cast again.

"There are, but you don't keep your line in long enough for anything to find it," answered Dean sharply.

The president of the Sun Oil Company slowly turned a brick red. "What'd you say, young man?" he sputtered. And then his line sang as it sped through the water. He gave a sharp pull, and the rod bent double.

"Loosen up! Let him have more line," yelled Dean.

The old man was too busy to answer. Anxiously he watched the reel spin, and put on the brake. The fish turned, and he had to start winding in a hurry. Mr. Blain fought gamely for ten minutes, sweat pouring from his face. "No darn fish is worth it," he groaned, and braced himself on the rail of the boat.

"You're making it hard work. If you'd relax, and do as I say you wouldn't be all in."

"Who said I was tired?" shouted the old man. "I'll land him if it takes a week!"

Walter Williams gave Ellen a knowing glance. "The man's got the boat company told me they don't often send Dean on fishing parties," he began. "Said he is all right at selling, but has a nasty temper. I'm sorry we asked him to come with us."

"I think it's fun," Ellen laughed excitedly. "Dad hasn't had anyone tell him what to do in years!"

"Your father doesn't like it," replied Walter. "He wants to buy a boat so he can entertain the firm's customers. I suppose it'll be up to me to find another one," he added.

"Let me help if you're tired," grinned Dean.

"I'll ease you out later," shouted Mr. Blain. "And be more careful with the gaff."

"A beauty," Dean told him. "Largest red fish caught in years. Over forty pounds."

"Looks like a whale," beamed the old man. "Put him on ice, and then come back here. There's a lot I want to say to you."

Dean chuckled. "I guess I did ride you a little." He looked the fish over carefully, and shook his head.

"My sorry, we'll have to put him back. There's a thirty-six inch limit on red fish."

"What?" shouted Mr. Blain. "You're crazy!"

"It's the law," Dean explained calmly.

"I'm the boss of this outfit," exploded the old man. "My camera's in the clubhouse. I'm going to take a picture when we get back there."

Dean started the motor, and swung the boat about. "Very well. Keep the fish if you want to, but remember there's a fifty-dollar fine if you're caught. Just keep quiet around the Yacht Club."

Walter hurried to get the camera. "What?" into the club bar. "We caught a fifty-pound red," he boasted to the manager. Glancing around he said in a low voice: "Have it down on the boat now."

Ellen was taking the third picture when the game warden came over. "I'll take that fish," he said. "And the fine is fifty dollars."

Half an hour later Dean hurriedly left the office of the boat company and drove back to the Yacht Club. Walking angrily into the bar he saw Mr. Blain. "Your secretary didn't waste any time running to my boss. I've been fired, thanks to you!"

"What?" sputtered the old man, jumping to his feet. "I told Walter to tell your office we wouldn't be interested in buying the boat," he shouted. "I didn't!"

"Your secretary," said the club manager quietly. "Is the one who tipped off the game warden, bragging about a 50-pound red fish. Seemed to want everyone on the bar to hear him."

In Blain's town house that evening Walter felt completely happy. He would spend the next few days looking at new boats. . . there might even be a little commission coming his way if he worked it just right. But then he heard his employer's voice—"I can use a man of Dean's ability."

"He'll need a good salary, father," said Ellen. "We may be together a lot in the future."

Walter's heart pounded. Something was terribly wrong.

"I love you're tired," said Ellen. "But hasn't it been fun?" And Dean can take charge of the new boat when you buy it," she added.

Mr. Blain chuckled. "I'm going to do a lot of fishing with Dean," he admitted.

"Walter will be disappointed," said Ellen quietly.

Mr. Blain started shouting. "Just wait until tomorrow morning. My voice," he said huskily, "won't stand the strain now. Anyway I want the entire office force around when I fire Walter."

The initial use of incendiaries by aircraft occurred during the German Zeppelin raid on London in 1915, when one airship dropped 90 fire bombs.

Have No Illusions

British People Know Peace Demands As Much As War

H. V. Morton, in the B.B.C. Series on "Life at Home," says: "One good thing about our attitude at home here in England is that we have no illusions this time. We know that Peace is going to demand almost as much from us as war. It was very different last time. How well I remember what it felt like to be demobilized—a queer twisted feeling of wild joy and regret, not unmingled with fear, and how well I remember the strange and improbable reflection in shop windows and that M.E. wearing a bowler hat—could it be true?—and how often my hand went up smartly to the bowler's brim when passing a general (for we did a lot of saluting in the last war!). But, above all, I remember the belief, which was shared by most of my generation, that when the war had been won a new Golden Age would automatically open up before us. Well; it didn't. And I think it's a good thing that now, when the War, or the European half of it, has ended, nobody at home thinks that we can decide the peace without leadership, vision, faith, truthfulness, self-sacrifice, hard work and—oh well, a new moral code."

Just Retribution

To Impress The Rank And File Of Our Enemies

Perhaps it is too much to expect that every one of the millions of Nazi war criminals will be punished but certainly the start this time is much more auspicious than 26 years ago. Then the guilty were not even mildly scared, most of them only amused. There is a different situation today.

Rough justice has already caught up with strutting Mussolini and many of his henchmen while literally scores of Nazis have taken the easy way out by committing suicide. Of course recidivists are blacker and consciences should be guiltier this time, but there is also real fear of retribution. It is to be hoped that this fear will continue to be well founded.

Every effort must be made to do this disgraceful job of sanitation thoroughly and promptly and if at all possible in a way that will impress the rank and file of our enemies that justice is being carried out, not persecution.—Toronto Financial Post.

Japan's Land Grab

Eight Countries Lost Control Of About 2,796,600 Square Miles

Through warfare in the past 50 years, Japan has grabbed land, totalling 2,796,600 square miles in area, with a population of 368,212,000 that belonged to eight countries: China, Britain, France, Thailand, Russia, Portugal, the Netherlands and the United States, our territory being Guam, Wake and the Philippines. Including its own people, Japan therefore controlled, one year ago, 21 per cent. of the population of the world.—Colliers.

The Clever Dutch

During German Occupation Adapted Entire Plane To Preserve Details—

Dutch workmen in a Fokker plane factory at Amsterdam during the German occupation stole enough parts to constitute an entire plane and buried it on the factory grounds to await liberation by the Allies, it has been revealed. More Treasure

Was Uncovered On Crag High In Austrian Alps

The slate treasure of Hungary, including the total gold reserve behind all Hungarian currency in circulation, was uncovered recently by the U.S. 80th infantry division on a rocky, pine-covered crag high in the Austrian Alps.

The treasure trove, hidden at the ancient mountain village of Spital Am Pyhrn, was unearthed by Hungarian-born Sgt. William J. DeHuszar, Chicago.

It included 4,000,000,000 pengos $130,000,000 at the present rate of exchange), 29,000 kilograms of gold bullion worth $30,000,000, complete sets of Hungarian bank note plates for printing all Hungarian currency and other wealth representing most of the capital interest and individual deposits of Hungary brought from Budapest before the Russians captured that city.

Also in the mountain-top chapel cellar were more than 1,000,000 reichsmarks, $150,000 in American currency, six cases of priceless Hungarian art treasures, including historical 14th century illuminated manuscripts belonging to the ancient Magyar kings, and 20 cases containing jewels and other valuables once the property of the royal Hungarian court.

This wealth in money, art and jewels was watched over by the pro-Nazi president of the Royal Bank of Hungary and some 500 financial experts, clerks, bookkeepers and other employees, guarded by 200 picked Hungarian gendarmes.

Allied supreme headquarters said gendarmes tried to remove the treasure shortly before the arrival of the 80th division.

But a patriot Hungarian stalled on the job and deliberately misled keys and vital records and generally sabotaged the German attempt at plunder. When the Americans arrived the Germans fled in panic.

Children With Defective Vision Well Looked After In Chicago

Children with defective vision are keeping pace with eagle-eyed youngsters in Chicago's public schools. Children whose sight has deteriorated to the danger point are put in special light-saving rooms. There they study with a minimum of eye strain, and learn how to conserve or improve their vision.

Everything in these rooms seems unique. The walls are painted a seafoam green and light floods through huge, studio-sized windows. Movable desks are shifted about so the light always comes over the students' left shoulders. Adjustable desk tops are fixed at each pupil's reading range. Blackboards are soft green, yellow chalk is an inch thick and writing paper is buff colored. Books are set in large, 24-point type and wall maps are big, simple, heavily lined.

Typical of the departments set up, within various regulation elementary and high schools, are two rooms at the Bell School. In one are lots of the first through fourth grades. Some have their strong eye covered with a patch. Each week, and thus strengthens, the weak eye.

In the other room are older boys and girls. Using the touch system, they poke out their writing lessons on typewriters equipped with over-size letters. When their eyes tire, they rest.

Their condition is checked and rechecked. Of the 337 schools placed in the special rooms in the three most recent semesters, 65 fared well enough to graduate and 62 recovered sufficiently to return to their regular classes.

Trained teachers instruct the sight-savers in the special rooms, but they recite in their regular classrooms. They also eat and play with their normal schoolmates.

Do they feel handicapped? "No," an overseer reports. "They think they're privileged."

Tip For Cattlemen

Brand Should Be Used That Will Not Damage Hide

Wide and deep branding of cattle on those parts of the body which supply the best leather is responsible for a considerable discount in the price of hides. Many cattle in Western Canada are produced under what might be called semi-ranch conditions and the animals must be marked in some way for identification. Owing to large brands spilling the hides for the manufacture of the best leather, it has been suggested that cattle men might consider the use of the smallest possible brand that would give protection and at the same time be placed in a position that would cause the least possible damage to the hide. The mark might be made on the ears, jaw, neck shoulder, thigh or rump.

Brazil, which is a heavy exporter to world hide markets, passed a law in 1939 prohibiting the branding of cattle on the body proper. Only brands that may be compassed by a 4 1/2 inch circle may be used and placed only on the cheek, neck, or legs below the belly line.

MIGHT BE GOOD IDEA

An English court has acquitted two school masters of assaulting an 11-year-old boy by caning him. It found that the caning was not excessive. It is too bad, says the Brockville Recorder and Times, that the cane and the strap have passed out of favor in this country. If they were still put to good use, we would undoubtedly have better discipline and less juvenile delinquency.

Security with Freedom!

Your Vote on June 11th can bring lasting security to your work, your home, your family!

Security for your WORK

Here are some of the definite, practical steps taken by the Liberal Government to give security to home and family by assuring well-paid post-war jobs for everyone.

For Veterans - The most generous plan of any United Nation to get returned men started in the type of work each of them chooses. The Liberal Government is determined that every man and woman coming home to Canada shall find the greatest opportunity in the world.

For Workers - About a third of all Canadians depend on exports for their livelihood. Liberal plans provide for increasing our exports 60% in value over those of 1939.

For Farmers - Acting on the belief that all Canadians prosper when farmers do, the Liberal Government has arranged that they can improve their farms and equipment under a new loan plan and has arranged to put a floor under the prices of farm and fishery products.

To stimulate employment for all, the Liberal Government has created a special Department of Reconstruction which is now in operation and which will co-ordinate private and public enterprise.

Security for your HOME

The Liberals believe that the home is the heart of the nation. They aim to give Canadians every possible facility to build and furnish better homes! With Government assistance you can build a home in the country, town or city. This will make jobs for the building trades, and those who make building supplies - and those who manufacture household equipment and furniture.

New Homes for Canadians - The Liberal Government's new $400,000,000 National Housing Act, now on the statute books, enables hundreds of thousands of Canadians to get money at low interest and on long, generous terms to build, renovate or enlarge their own homes. Now that Germany is defeated, plans are already in operation for at least 50,000 dwellings.

Other practical, workable measures for the security of your home are the Liberal Government's laws for Unemployment Insurance and Liberal Old Age Pensions.

The Liberals believe in doing what can be done, as soon as it can be done. If returned to power on June 11th, they will carry on and expand the sound, constructive work already started.

Security for your FAMILY

Family Allowances - Starting in July, parents who benefit least from income tax exemptions will receive Family Allowance cheques every month to help them get better food, clothing, shelter and education for their children so they can grow into healthy, vigorous Canadian citizens. These cheques will amount to between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 a year. As direct spending power, this will do much to help in achieving the Liberals' objective of full employment.

Health - A National Health Plan will ensure that everybody shall be taken care of while they are sick and the best measures medical science can devise shall be employed to prevent disease.

Despite the efforts of Drew, Bruce, Bracken and other reactionaries, the Liberals are determined that human interests, the needs of men, shall be placed before "business as usual".

The Liberals have faith in Canada, a united country, and in their ability to continue to build, with your support, a more abundant life and greater opportunities for Canadians.

Help build this new order of security with freedom. Protect the social gains already made. Vote for your Liberal candidate on June 11th.
